In this edition of U-talk - "I am Czech and live with my family in the Czech Republic. However, I work in Slovakia and commute to work every day. In which country are my family and I covered by my medical insurance?"

The response to this question is provided by Europe Direct Communication Officer Jimena GÃ³mez de la Flor:
If you live in one country but work in another and travel there daily, or at least once a week, you are considered, under EU law, to be a 'cross-border commuter'."
